1. INTRODUCTION

- 1.1. This Community Code of Conduct outlines the expectations and associated responsibilities for all members of the Moriah College Community.
- 1.2. This Code of Conduct addresses the shared responsibilities of all members of the College Community, in building a safe and respectful College community. Everyone has the right to differing opinions and views and to raise concerns, as long as they do so respectfully and as a community working together.
- 1.3. The Community Code of Conduct is not meant to be exhaustive. It does not attempt to provide a detailed list of expected behaviours. Rather, the Community Code of Conduct is intended as a guide to assist students, staff, and parents/guardians, by setting out the standards of behaviour expected of them in the College environment, or when attending any function or activity of, or relating to, the College in any location at which the College is represented.
- 1.4. The Community Code of Conduct supports and reinforces the College's mission - to achieve excellent academic standards by promoting the intellectual, spiritual, moral, social and physical development of students underpinned by Jewish values. Moriah strives to foster critical thought, cultural engagement, tolerance, social responsibility and self-discipline. The total development of all our students remains our overall concern – helping them to proudly realise their full potential as Australian Jews.
- 1.5. The Community Code of Conduct also supports and reinforces the College's Ethos and the College's Core Values - commitment (mechuyavut), responsibility (achrayut), respect (kavod) and integrity (yoshra).

The College Ethos

Moriah College is a Jewish Day that espouses a Modern Orthodox Zionist Jewish philosophy or Jewish ethos.

In defining itself as Modern Orthodox, the College acknowledges the primacy of Halacha, (Jewish Religious Law), and promotes and practises its observance. The College endeavours to impart to its students a knowledge and love of, and encourages a commitment to, Modern Orthodox Jewish practice, beliefs and texts.

The College intends that its graduates will emerge from their College experience with a strong and sustainable Jewish identity, both motivated and equipped to act: as advocates for Israel; committed members of the Jewish community; and as engaged Australian citizens.

The College's Modern Orthodox orientation means that the College values and promotes full engagement with the secular world, as a way of enhancing the Jewishness of its students. The College believes that knowledge and understanding of science, literature and the arts provides a prism that broadens and extends the meaning of the Jewish practice of the believing Jew.

The pursuit of excellence in secular study, artistic endeavour and sporting performance is central to its secular program and is integral to the College's Jewish ethos.

The College's co-educational structure is a manifestation of its Modern Orthodox ethos, reflecting a firm belief that no distinction ought to be made between the education of boys and girls, other than in the areas of prayer and ritual where Halacha demands a difference.

As an expression of its Zionist orientation, the College strives to imbue its students with a love for the State of Israel and the Modern Hebrew language that is informed by identification with the State of Israel as the spiritual and historic homeland of the Jewish people.

The College's Jewish ethos is manifest in many practical ways. The following comprises a list of some examples as to how the College's Jewish ethos is implemented:

- The wearing of Kippot for boys as part of the College uniform;
- The observance of the Jewish Sabbath, - no Shabbat-prohibited work is undertaken by the College or on behalf of the College on the Jewish Sabbath and on religious holidays. The College does not participate in sporting events or other activities that would conflict with the strict observance of the Sabbath;
- The strict observance of Jewish dietary laws of Kashrut;
- Reliance on the authority of the Sydney Beth Din (Rabbinical Court) in matters of Jewish status;
- Celebration and religious observance of Yom Ha'atzmaut and Yom Yerushalayim;

- Singing of Hatikvah;
- The avoidance of functions and activities that conflict with the atmosphere considered appropriate, during the various periods of mourning in the Jewish calendar; and,
- Daily prayer (davening) for all students.

Applying The College Ethos

While the College has a deliberate and definite religious orientation, it recognises that its students and their families come from a wide range of Jewish backgrounds covering the whole spectrum of religious observance. In striving to provide a comfortable home to this broad congregation, the College adopts an inclusive approach. For those who are not ritually observant, the College encourages greater Jewish commitment and expression of Jewish identity, in a manner that is constructive. Similarly, the College welcomes students who have a stricter level of ritual observance than the College practises, dealing sensitively and supportively with their particular religious needs.

Without detracting from its commitment to its Jewish Ethos described above, the College follows its traditional inclusive practice in continuing to accommodate diverse expectations from its parent body by providing certain specific activities namely: permitting girls to sing in public at College events; the holding of 'co-ed' Swimming Carnivals; and the acceptance of sensitive themes in literature and the performing and visual arts, that are not in keeping with Modern Orthodox practice. The College endeavours to provide constructive alternative programs for, and to treat sensitively, those students whose participation in these activities is precluded by their strict adherence to Halacha.
